Uncommon Colds.

"It is just a common cold," people say, "there's no danger in that." Admitting their statement, then there are uncommon colds, colds which are danuncommon colds, colds which are dangerous; for many a fatal sickness begins with a cold. If we could tell the common cold from the uncommon we could feel quite safe. But we can't. The uncommon variety is rarely recognized until it has fastened its hold on the lungs, and there are symptoms of consumption.

The repeated failure of the Carif t uprisings had so securely set aside the Salic law that there was no question of acknowledging the elder of these baby princesses, the Infanta Mercedes, as Queen, and her mother, the Queen Dowager Christina, we as to once proclaimed Regent during the minerity of the young Queen. On May 17, 1866, the little Princess was deposed from her place by the birth of a posthumous son to the late King. He was named Alforea, and was at once posthumous son to the late King. He was named Alfonso, and was at once recognized as King under the title of Alfonso XIII.. his mother being a nationed in the regency. There were some expressions of discontent at the birth of the King on the part of the Carlist faction, who had looked forward to their practical return to power through the precible marriage of the Infanta Merc des to Prioce Jaime, the 15 year-old son of Don Carl 1.

In appearance the young King much resembles his mother. He has a fresh complexion, slightly bronzed by his outdoor exercises, clear, expressive brown eyes and curly auburn hair. He has his mother's forehead and closeset eyes, and the famous "Hapsburg inp."

beip the young monarch, in this he will be as fortunate and happy as even romance lauguages; Spanish, the tongue of nis people; French, the glib medium of European diplomacy; German, the a Austria, and English, which even the Spaniard real z a has become the language of commerce. He has studied religion as thoroughly as though he were to take orders, and has then schooled fully in geography, history, methematics, literature, chemistry, physica and drawing. He plays so well on the piano that what was once a task has become as much of a recreation as the ridcome as much of a recreation as the fut-ing or bicycling or tennis playing or photographing, in which the boy king has found his pleasures.

Alfonso is tractable, yet firm in dis-

Though he does not believe in war holding that the powers of a country can best be maintained by extension through purchase; by the care of trade rather than by the force of arms, Al fonso yet delights in mili'ary exercise He handles the saber, sword, revolved and gun with rare dexterity, and three days in a week he spends the whole afternoon on the drill ground.

THE UNIVERSITY .- The programme and final exercises at the University of Virginia probably will excel any of former years. In addition to the usual events, there will be unveiled on Wednesday, June 18, a portrait of Chief Justice John Marsball, which was presented to the university by Mr. John L. Williams, of Richmond, Judge L. L. Lewis, of that city, will make the presentation address, and Prof. W. Minor Lile will make the response on behalf of the university.

On the same day Col. William E. Peters, who, this session, will retire as professor of Latin after over thirty years of service, will be presented with a loving cup in appreciation of the regard and esteem in which he is held by other adventors of the State and he other educators of the State and by his old pupils. Prof. Foard, of the Virginia Military Institute, and Dr. Denny, of Washington and Lee Uni-

Denny, of Washington and Lee University, are at the head of the movement to present this cup.

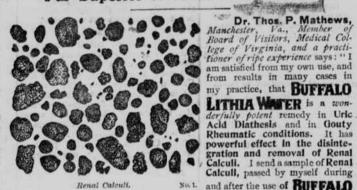

James Lave Allen, the Kentucky author, will deliver the final address before the Washington and Jefferson literary societies. The address before the Society of Alumni will be made by Judge E. H.
